

DMC Cardio Team One: Because a heart attack can't wait.

You'd think that hospitals would have a heart specialist on-site 24/7. But they don't. And that means, when you arrive at the emergency room with a heart attack, you have to wait.

And when you're having a heart attack, waiting can mean irreversible heart damage. The national goal for heart attack treatment is 90 minutes. Most hospitals average around 120 minutes.

At the DMC, a heart specialty team is ready and waiting.

DMC CARDIO TEAM ONE:

- A Heart Attack responseteam that's on site, not "on call."
- A team of the best specialists, on-site, every minute, of every hour, of every day.
- A team of the best specialists, waiting for you, instead of the other way around.
- Only at DMC Harper and Receiving hospitals, in the heart of Midtown Detroit.
